Excerpt: . granted, I relinquished the experiment, because after my connexion with Mr. Cooke it was necessary to divert the funds I had destined for this purpose to other uses. What I have above stated is sufficient to show that I had paid great attention to the subject of telegraphic communication by means of electricity, and had made important practical advances, long before I had any acquaintance with, or had ever heard of Mr. Cooke. My experiments had also been announced in print in the Magazine of Popular Science for March 1837. 520. The first of Professor Wheatstone s practical advances was, as you will observe, his volunteering to superintend the establishment of an Electric Telegraph on the London and Birmingham RailWay To Superintend The Establishment Of An Electric Telegraph On The London And BirMingham Railway. Let me first beg of you, Gentlemen, to compare 521. Professor Wheatstone s statement in this respect with the following passage in his letter of October: -- When you first proposed a partnership, you know how strongly I opposed it, and on what grounds I did so. 522. I said that I felt myself perfectly confident of being able to carry out my views to the ends I anticipated; that I fully intended to do so, to publish the results, and then to allow any person to carry them into practical effect. I told you that while I admired the ingenuity of your contrivance, I had no opinion whatever...
